Linda Hatcher is a corporate, transactional and health care lawyer. She represents clients that range from individuals just starting their businesses to publicly traded companies. She has represented clients across diverse industries and has extensive experience in the health care industry.

Linda's earlier career was in business management. Prior to becoming a lawyer, Linda was a business manager with American Hospital Supply Corporation (now Baxter). That experience enables her to truly appreciate and respect the business needs of her clients when assisting them with legal matters.

Linda's areas of expertise include:

- Business formations
- Business ventures
- Contracts
- Licensing and regulatory (business and professional)
- Health care regulatory (including anti-kickback, anti-referral, licensing and other legal compliance)
- Employment-related matters (including employment arrangements, employer policies and legal compliance)
- Organizational governance and relations (matters relative to directors, officers, managers and owners and to corporate formalities and corporate housekeeping)
- Mergers, acquisitions and sales of businesses
- Dissolutions, buy-outs and dissociations
