Walter Peña specializes in a broad spectrum of complex litigation and dispute resolution, with a focus on defending companies in labor and employment class actions. He has represented large and small companies in a range of matters involving California and federal law, including wage and hour class actions, employee misclassification actions, and independent contractor misclassification lawsuits. Mr. Peña has represented companies in federal and state court, as well as a variety of arbitral tribunals.

Mr. Peña also has expertise in complex construction and engineering disputes and has represented several public agencies in connection with major building programs and engineering procurements. In addition, Mr. Peña has experience in matters that involve corporate criminal investigations, database security breaches, and trade secret misappropriation.

Prior to joining Theodora Oringher PC, Mr. Peña was an associate in the Los Angeles firm Jones Day.
