Rina Stinson is an associate in the Orange County office of Theodora Oringher PC. Ms. Stinson comes from a generations-long line of entrepreneurs and understands the potential and the challenges of business ownership. Her litigation experience includes representing individuals and employers in discrimination, wrongful termination, constructive discharge, and wage and hour matters in state and federal courts. She earned her J.D. from the University of California, Irvine School of Law, where she founded It Takes a Village, a student organization for those caring for dependents.

While in law school, Ms. Stinson successfully represented domestic violence survivors in family court, clerked for the District Attorney's Offices of Los Angeles and Orange Counties, and served as a legal extern for the Honorable Kimberly Knill of Superior Court of California, County of Orange.

Her current pro bono work includes volunteering at Laura's House, a domestic violence agency in Orange County.
